Associate Dean for Information Technology and Library Services/Associate Professor of Law/ Director of the Law Library
January 2005– Present

As a member of the faculty and law school senior administration, reporting directly to the dean, I am responsible for coordinating the use of technology within the College of Law and supervising the law school's technology support team, consisting of a director of IT & digital resources and two student workers providing technology support. As Director of the Rinn Law Library, I am responsible for the financial management and quality of library services and support offered to the faculty, students, and alumni of DePaul College of Law. My primary duties include formulating projections and policies for the future development of the law library and supervising the implementation and realization of those policies; serving as the final authority over the expenditure of law library funds, and the hiring and management of its staff; providing an annual report to the Dean of the College of Law on the state and development of the library and its staff, which includes an operational budget proposal; acquiring materials and developing services for the faculty of the College of Law which will be helpful to their teaching and scholarship; encouraging and supporting active faculty participation in the development of the law library; encouraging and supporting the development, growth, and education of the library staff and assuring them of the best possible working conditions; developing and implementing methods of instruction on using the law library and its tools for incoming DePaul law students; teaching a section of Advanced Legal Research, as part of the Law Skills curriculum, and Intro to American Law & Legal Systems as part of the Master of Jurisprudence program; cooperating with the University Librarian to further the implementation of policies that will benefit users of all DePaul libraries and the students and faculty of the entire University; actively participating in the overall team effort to develop and maintain a high quality of service within the operation of the law library, law school and the university.

Associate Director of Public Services

February 1998-December 2004

Under the direct supervision of the Associate Dean of Technology and Library Services, I managed and administered all facets of daily public services operations in a large urban law school with 40 full-time faculty and approximately 700 students. My responsibilities included circulation, reference, interlibrary loan, collection development and maintenance, and the use of information instruction technologies. My general duties consisted of assisting in the general administration of the library; researching and negotiating vendor contracts; preparing and monitoring budgets; supervision of personnel, and the development and implementation of long-range plans. My specific duties entailed; hiring, training, supervising, and evaluating public services personnel, consisting of two full-time librarians; two part-time librarians; three full-time paraprofessional library assistants, and a varying number of student assistants and hourly employees. I also administered and participated in the Faculty Liaison Program, which provided research and library services for faculty, including; online searches; facilitating photocopying of cases, articles, and other library materials upon request; providing assistance in locating print materials or in the use of electronic resources relevant to research needs; working with faculty in the identification, evaluation and selection of library materials; preparation of bibliographies; and serving as back-up to other library liaisons as needed. I also facilitated formal and informal instruction in legal research for law students by coordinating and overseeing classes and workshops administered by the library's professional staff as part of the Legal Research Writing and Analysis Course.
